

Private Residence - Brookfield

Before

After a transformation of the front yard brought order and definition to this home, our clients asked us back to create a dynamic new terrace for their growing young family. With two young boys quickly taking over all areas of the home our clients wanted to develop the rear yard for themselves while not overlooking the joys of being a child. The client added a large swing set to the side yard for the kids and wanted us to provide a space that was kid friendly but primarily focused on their needs. We enlarged the terrace and pulled it away from the residence to create free movement for the boys, but maintained an adult attitude. Additional seating was provided with the addition of a serpentine seatwall that also framed a new fire pit seating area. New plantings will soon grow to give this area a great garden setting where one can watch the kids play.
