

Private Residence - La Grange

Before

The space was tiny, had no definite identity and lacked privacy from either neighbor. We were brought in to help the client realize the space into an area they could entertain, live and enjoy their family during summer. To give separation from the driveway we raised the terrace, brought in mature trees, added a few evergreens to add privacy and make the space more intimate. The pergola structure served a few purposes, it enclosed the space without being a wall, it is a connection from the adult terrace to the more user friendly child area in the rear, as well it hid the shade cloths to shield the western sun and hid down lighting to extend the use of this space well into the evening. Not only is there a wood burning fireplace and bubbling stone water feature, during larger parties the benches between the posts can be removed to allow for overflow on to the driveway.
