

Private Residence - Homer Glen

Before

The site is an awesome, tranquil, wooded lot nestled next to a forest preserve and a large multi acre pond made us wonder what was needed. We were asked to master plan the property and identify several opportunities to make this property even better. Much of our focus was to bring the natural environment right up to the residence. We removed and recycled the manufactured blocks for another project, altered grades to soften slopes and create some movement. In addition, we added nearly 40 tons of new outcropping stones throughout to hold up slopes and add a four season dynamic to the landscape. Many existing plants were reused throughout the project, as well as the addition of evergreens and several flowering shrubs. To further develop the connection to the woods we defined the bedlines through out to add movement and interest while allowing the woods and the lawn to weave together.
